by Shanan Miller. Your vehicle's key code is necessary if you need to replace your car keys through a dealership or locksmith. Your vehicle's key code is usually stored in your owner's manual, as long as it is the one that came with the vehicle when it was new. If not, you will have to prove ownership at a dealership to retrieve the code, which can usually be done for free.

Amazon.co.uk: key code locks
A code key is a key that is un-copied, an original key that is cut to very specific measurements. When a key is created, it is created using a code. The code determines the depth of the cuts made. When a key has been used too long, is damaged, or has been worn down, it may still unlock the doors, but eventually the key will either break, get stuck inside the lock (damaging the system), or it will suddenly stop working all together.
