Cape Cod is magical at any time of year. However, many permanent residents, including sisters Rachel and Beth Brewster, find it hard to make ends meet during the cold, lonely winter months, which is why they must work extra-long hours at multiple jobs all through the short summer season to save enough for the rest of the year. To complicate matters, Beth is only fifteen and is restricted as to how many hours she can work during the school year. It wouldn't be so bad if their mother weren't an alcoholic who absolutely refuses to help with the bills. Then the dead bodies begin cropping up in the neighborhoods and marshes surrounding scenic Lewis Bay. The Yarmouth and Barnstable Police begin to see a pattern linking both Rachel and Beth to the murders, but they can't seem to assemble enough proof to make an arrest. Meanwhile, a regular patron of a bar where Rachel frequently works in the evening provides some help in the young woman's search for a better-paying job, and life becomes hell for Beth as she is stalked small boat appears out of the gorge between Hudgin's lake and this one. He sees that the boat is badly damaged but is afloat. There is a family aboard that needs urgent help. He watches them for a few minutes and sees them bring the boat to shore. They appear to be injured. He is hours from a road or other rescue, so with the impetuosity of youth, he takes the matter into his own hands and swims across. Thread three. The Whitcomb family is stranded after being pulled down Lesser Hell's Canyon Gorge in their small boat. It is a hair-raising roller coaster of a ride that few could expect to survive. They are

However, nothing is as simple as it seems, and lives are irrevocably changed on that day when he comes ashore. It becomes a weekend none of them will ever forget when the disparate threads come together. Fate, decrees that there will be one very violent death, and that two lives will be forever
