She can feel sorry for herself. Or she can listen...to the voice in her head. For Indigo Phillips, life has always been about basking in the shadow of her identical twin, Violet—the perfectly dressed, gentle, popular sister. The only problem the girls had in their lives was the occasional chaos that came with being part of the Phillips family brood. But when Violet becomes terminally ill and plans to die on her own terms via medically assisted death, Indigo spirals into desperation in her efforts to cope. That's when she begins to hear a mysterious voice—a voice claiming to be God. The Voice insists that if she takes Violet to a remote rock formation in the Arizona desert, her sister will live. Incredibly, Violet agrees to go—if their dysfunctional family tags along for the ride. With all nine members stuffed into a wonky old paratransit bus, including their controlling older sister and distant mother, Indigo must find a way to face insecurities she's spent a lifetime masking and step up to lead the trip. As she deals with outrageous mishaps, strange lodgings and even stranger folks along the way, Indigo will figure out how to come to terms with her sister, her family...and the voice in her head.

When Luke's older sister, Pat, disappears off the coast of Honduras and believed drowned, Luke heads there to discover the truth.

An award-winning psychologist reveals the hidden power of our inner voice and shows how we can harness it to live a healthier, more satisfying, and more productive life. "This book is going to fundamentally change some of the most important conversations in your life--the ones you have with yourself."--Adam Grant, bestselling author of Give and Take One of the best new books of the year--The Washington Post, BBC, CNN Underscored, Shape, Behavioral Scientist, PopSugar * Kirkus Reviews, Publishers Weekly, and Shelf Awareness starred reviews * Next Big Idea Club Finalist Tell a stranger that you talk to yourself, and you're likely to get written off as eccentric. But the truth is that we all have a voice in our head. When we talk to ourselves, we often hope to tap into our inner coach but find our inner critic instead. When we're facing a tough task, our inner coach can buoy us up: Focus--you can do this. But, just as often, our inner critic sinks us entirely: I'm going to fail. They'll all laugh at me. What's the use? In Chatter, acclaimed psychologist Ethan Kross explores the silent conversations we have with ourselves. Interweaving groundbreaking behavioral and brain research from his own lab with real-world case studies--from a pitcher who forgets how to pitch, to a Harvard undergrad negotiating her double life as a spy--Kross explains how these conversations shape our lives, work, and relationships. He warns that giving in to negative and disorienting self-talk--what he calls "chatter"--can tank our health, sink our moods, strain our social connections, and cause us to fold under pressure. But the good news is that we're already equipped with the tools we need to make our inner voice work in our favor. These tools are often hidden in plain sight--in the words we use to think about ourselves, the technologies we embrace, the diaries we keep in our drawers, the conversations we have with our loved ones, and the cultures we create in our schools and workplaces. Brilliantly argued, expertly researched, and filled with compelling stories, Chatter gives us the power to change the most important conversation we have each day: the one we have with ourselves.

The Voices in my Head is a chance for children (and their carers) to learn to feel okay about themselves even when things go wrong, even when they feel stupid or when they compare themselves to others. How do you want your children to feel when they fail at something, make a mistake, or behave in a way that isn't so great? The Voices in your Head will help guide children and parents alike to learn to pay attention to the kind voice in their head, so that they can feel safe and confident in who they are, no matter whether they come first or last. Let Booster be the clearest, strongest voice inside their heads, so that they feel happy in their own skin.

The Voice in My Head By: Jason Brion Brunn On September 11, 2001, just after the second plane hit the World Trade Center, a voice rang in Jason Brion Brunn's ears crying out, almost screaming, "You can't let these acts be done in any of my names! It is time to let the truth be told! I'll will speak to all through you!" Growing up, Brunn and his brother were taught about God through stories told by his beloved mother. She said that the miracles and majick were for all to ascertain when we learn how to connect with God, one another, and ourselves, and be honest and good. He would later learn what bad was from a book that describes evil as a natural phenomenon, an explanation into the "Survival of the Fittest" ethos, and his mind was blown. Making a connection to the idea of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, he realized it was an issue of consent. And so, he wonders, why can't we see our own living scripture? Why can't we see that our beliefs are what we imagine them to be? The God we worship is seen in our eyes. The Devil is in us all. The Voice in My Head consists of God's words, spoken to and through Brunn following the events described above. Nothing but life and the voice prepared him for this task. Though the voice is muffled by sorrow, frustration, and anger and the demons inside are never quiet, Brunn listens attentively for the voice. Do you hear it?

"I was the one he trusted. I was the one he loved, the only one who believed him, even when his own mother had locked him up and thrown away the key. And now, I was going to pass down the white tiled hallway, knock on his doctor's office door, slam his secret notebook on her desk and make her read it, make her understand what he was hiding, make her see what only I had seen." April won't let Jonah go without a fight. He's her boyfriend-her best friend. She'll do anything to keep him safe. But as Jonah slips into a dark depression, trying to escape the traumatic past that haunts him, April is torn. To protect Jonah, she risks losing everything: family, friends, an opportunity to attend a prestigious music school. How much must she sacrifice? When that little voice in your head tells you that you shouldn't be doing what you're doing, do you listen to it? Emma is a little girl whose Mommy explains to her that the little voice in her head is her conscience - a gift from God that tells her whether something is wrong or right. She explains how we can have a clean conscience because of Jesus, and how we train our consciences to work better by understanding the Bible.
